TO THE CITIZENS OF RALEIGH.

Finding that a first-class Lock and whitening was needed in Raleigh, I have employed a first-class workman from England, and purchased a set of the latest improved Tools and Material.

I am now prepared to do all kinds of Lock and Gun Smithing, Bell Hanging, and Repair and Brass work of all kind.

Will repair all kinds of Sewing Machines at moderate prices, and in fact anything that you have made of iron, brass, copper, steel, or any other metal, that is broken or out of order, bring it to me, and I will do it in a workmanlike manner, or no charge. Respectfully, J. J. BREWSTER.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CONVEN-TION.—I would give notice that I have completed my Great Picture of the members of the Constitutional Convention, and am now prepared to fill all orders promptly. For beauty of finish, elegance of taste, and the finest work of Photographic Art, it is pronounced by all who have seen it to be far superior to any production ever completed in North Carolina. In comparison, all other attempts are a complete failure, as will be remembered by all the members who have seen both. W. SHEPHERD,

Thanksgiving Supper

TO THE

RALEIGH BOARD OF TRADE.

BY THE

DAILY & WEEKLY NEWS,

Nov. 25th, 1875.

The News office has reason to felicitate itself upon the success of its entertainment on Thursday evening.

The objects of the entertainment are fully expressed in the welcome address of the Editor of the News, and it will be only necessary to say that the motives were fully understood and appreciated by the public. The affair was a most happy and successful one. The attendance, embracing gentlemen of all the professions, trades and avocations of the city, was very large, numbering between five and six hundred persons. A beautiful and elegant supper, served in the printing room of the office turned for the nonce into a banquet hall, was heartily enjoyed by the guests. The most perfect order and good humor prevailed, and the feast, inter-persed with capital speeches, was kept up until a late hour.

We will publish all the speeches, taking them in the order in which they came. They were too numerous for me to notice the very handsome manner in which Major Seaton Gales acquitted himself of his laborious duties as Master of Ceremonies.

To which post he had been assigned by the Editor of the News. His fine voice, his easy manners, his honorable position, proved him to be one by nature as the "Master of the feast."

About half past 9 o'clock Major Gales called the table to order, and a blessing was pronounced by the Rev

Dr. Atkinson, after which the guests were welcomed by J. D. Cameron, Editor of the News as follows:

Gentlemen of the Board of Trade and you, Gentlemen, Representatives of the Trades, Professions and General Interests of the City of Raleigh, N. C.

On behalf of the DAILY NEWS I bid you a cordial welcome. It is a gratification to us that at length it is in the power of the press, as it is in the power of the people, to recognize the many marks of honor and generosity of which it has been the recipient from the citizens of Raleigh. It can never forget the magnificent cran-tium of eighteen months ago, when your whole population vied in the splendor of your reception and the profusion of your hospitality. We accept of these honors gratefully, but with the pardonable pride of recognized usefulness. The press of North Carolina did itself the justice to believe, that whatever might be its shortcomings in regard to results, it was working faithfully and earnestly for the welfare of the State. Your reception of us at that time showed to us that you recognized our purposes, and that you were with fresh vigor and warmth to new exertions.

Speaking for the Journal whose humble leaders I am, I must say that it is to you, citizens of Raleigh, that we owe the recognition of past civilization, and the acknowledgment of past merits. It is mainly to the liberal support of the merchants, the artisans, the professional men, and all other classes in your community that the sun of prosperity has beamed upon us. To you, we owe the comfortable assurance that the News is fixed upon so firm a foundation as to make it one of the permanent institutions of the city. And here let me say, without trenching upon the for-bidden ground of controversy, that the News owes its prosperity to nothing beyond the respect and patronage of the city and industry of those entrusted with its management.

A secondary and most important object of our entertainment, going beyond the recognition of past civilization, and the acknowledgment of past merits, is to bring together in pleasant social union all the representative men of the city, where the common interests of all might be brought

JORDAN STONE, Associate Editor

THE DAILY NEWS is the Only Paper in the City of Raleigh That Takes the Telegraphic Reports.

OUR TERMS:

ADVERTISING RATES.—For square (ten lines) nonpareil first insertion $1.00; each subsequent insertion 50 cents. Contracts for advertisements of any space or time can be made at the counting-room of the NEWS OFFICE.

CONTRACTORS will positively not be allowed to exceed their space, or advertise other than the legitimate business, except by paying specially for the same.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.—Daily, one year, $5.00; six months $3.00. Weekly, one year, $1.00; six months, 75 cents. Invariably in advance.

Notice to Correspondents.

No letter can be published in these columns which is not authenticated by the name of its author. This we require, not for publication, but as a guarantee of the good faith of correspondents. Persons who violate this rule will have their communications consigned to the waste-basket.

THE WEEKLY NEWS is the cheapest paper published in North Carolina. It is only one dollar per year, postage paid, contains 32 columns of plain printed news from every section of the country, and important advertisements. Always Cash.

The candidates for this speaker-ship are all on the ground. Kerr presents the best political record. Randall and Cox are not altogether clear. But the South will recall the heroic resistance last winter by the adroit use of profound parliamentary skill which Randall made to the passage of measures pregnant with ruin to the liberties of the South, and Southern members will vote against him with reluctance.

There is one very comforting prospect in the coming House of Representatives—it is said that the annual appropriations can be cut down fifty millions and that the taxes can be reduced forty millions! The St. Louis trials show where some of the people's money has been going. The condition of the Navy shows where a great deal of it has not gone. Every where has been waste, extravagance and dishonesty. The people are oppressed and plundered, that officials and official favorites might retire with colossal fortunes to private life. Let the Democratic Congress sweep out this foul brood, and cleanse this Augean stable.

SENATOR FERRY.

A despatch to the New York Times suggests a difficulty in the recognition of the Senator from Michigan as the permanent President of the Senate and the possible future President of the United States. He was selected with reference more to his pleasant manners and familiarity with parliamentary law, than with an eye to his succession to a position not out of the reach of possibility. But he is said not to be in accord with the administration on the currency question.

The lesson is a useful one, and may be applied here at home. Men are apt to lose sight of the fact that office-holders are mortal as well as others. One selected for the highest posts in the gift of the people is supposed to be covered by an insurance which guarantees his life to the end of his term. Therefore, subordinates are often chosen without reference to solid qualifications. Any clever man is thought good enough to fill up a ticket, and personal amiability, or oftener still, a politic consideration for the claims of a section, decide a choice which ought to be deliberate and impartial. It is no uncommon thing for Presidents to die. Governors are equally liable to go the way of all flesh. Vice-Presidents and Lieutenant-Governors are not immortal. And, therefore, in the selection of subordinates, something more than personal amiability, or sectional claims must be considered. Our nominating convention for Governor may make a note of this.

THE ST. LOUIS CONVENTION.

We have not the full reports of the proceedings of the St. Louis Convention, Thanksgiving Day having intervened to interrupt the reports of the proceedings. The prime mover in the affair appears however to be there, and we shall soon hear all about him. Col. Tom Scott was there, and with active industry and plausible tongue was trying to convince the Southern delegates of his disinterestedness and warm zeal in Southern interests. Possibly he will get the Convention to endorse his views, and then the question comes before Congress to be—well, politicians are very uncertain.

In the meantime Scott has some very watchful and sagacious eyes upon him—we will not say jealous eyes, since the strongest notes of warning and opposition come from the North, which is the section most to be profited by the success of Scott's scheme. A good deal of that opposition grows out of the immense subsidy, that fruitful source of corruption and added burdens to the people, which Scott demands as necessary for the completion of the connections.

The New York Journal of Commerce and the New York Bulletin both express the views of sagacious and disinterested observers, and their cautions ought to put Southern men, at least, on their guard. The former journal takes the view expressed in this and other Southern papers, that the Road, if built, would be only a prolongation of a Northern line, and while it would be a great benefit to the States lying on the Mississippi, it would be of far less service to the Southern States of the Atlantic tier.

All the Southern States are vitally interested in keeping this point in view. A true Southern Pacific road, having its terminus on the lower Mississippi, and with branches radiating from that in various directions would distribute the stream of transcontinental and Asiatic traffic through the States of Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama, and bring Florida, Georgia, North and South Carolina and Virginia into competition for its foreign distribution. The road would be of immense importance and of immediate effect upon the fortunes of those States. And it would restore the equilibrium of government favor now preponderating so heavily on the side of the North. It would destroy that partiality at once unjust and oppressive and so trying to that attachment of the people of the South might have to a government theoretically making no distinctions affecting sections, but really acting with unconcealed discrimination in favor of one.

We are in receipt of a pamphlet containing the letter of Hon. John W. Johnson, U. S. Senator from Virginia in opposition to the so-called Southern Pacific Rail Road bill, together with some other documents, to which we are indebted to a friend in Petersburg. We have not had the time to give them attention, though the letter of Senator Johnson is no new publication, and we saw it last winter.

A WORD TO CAPITALISTS.

The views expressed by Dr. McCullum at the News entertainment on Thursday night, will no doubt impress themselves upon those who heard them. Dr. M. is a practical man of great sagacity, and of enlarged observation and experience, himself engaged in one important branch of manufacture, and therefore authority in regard to the expenses of running such establishments.

His remarks were directed principally to the subject of cotton factories, and his demonstration of the losses to which planters and merchants subjected themselves by shipping of all the raw material to the North, and the losses also sustained by capitalists in neglecting investments so profitable as factories in the South have proven themselves to be, might bring the blush of mortification for so palpable a want of sagacity.

Dr. McCullum illustrates his views by figures which are irrefragable. For instance, he shows that while the farmer receives 12 cents per pound, for raw cotton this pound when manufactured, comes back for Southern consumption with a value of 50 cents. The value of the cotton brought to Raleigh and shipped thence is $2,000,000. When made up into goods it is worth $8,000,000. On this amount of two millions for the raw material there is a gain by its conversion into goods of six millions (!) which difference is divided among the manufacturer, the railroad, the jobber and the retail merchants, these last having a very small share.

Will the South longer submit to this? Can she do it and prosper? It is impossible. Really the South is little better than the semi-civilized nations which furnish the raw material for the more cultivated and intelligent of mankind to work up into marketable fabrics. The South delegates to others the exercise of brain, the use of intelligence, skill and capital, while sapinely and ignorantly contenting itself with the position of the laborer unable or unwilling to convert to its proper use the rich products of his fields.

Dr. McCullum calls upon capitalists to come to the rescue as well for their own profit as well as the good of the South. It is demonstrable beyond a doubt that no Southern factory is worked at a less profit than 20 per cent, and that investments are much safer than in the present disposition monied men make of their surplus funds. Ho also showed the easy practicability of running factories by steam where water power is not available, taking the views we expressed some days since. And he proceeded to show the little expense attending the use of steam, which will dissipate many false impressions. It requires three pounds of coal for every horse power of an engine. For a factory larger than any one now in operation in the State, a daily consumption of one and a half tons is required. Estimating that at Philadelphia prices, the annual cost is only one half of one per cent. on the outlay. With wood fuel, the cost may be less.

The intelligent gentleman called attention also to other neglected branches of manufacture which the South is content to leave to other hands, such as that of leather, machinery, iron work, &c., all of which he demonstrates would and could be made profitable.

Not only capitalists, but the whole people of the State should give these statements careful consideration, because in their wise application is the real road to wealth and independence.

The Statement of the Engineer Who Survived the Terrible Disaster on the C. C. & A. Railroad.

A reporter of the Augusta Constitutionalist, publishes in Tuesday's issue of that paper, the following interesting account of an interview held on Sunday morning last with James Fetter, the engineer who ran into Capt. Sprinkle's train on the Charlotte and Columbia Railroad a week ago, causing the terrible disaster about which so much has been said in the papers. The Constitutionalist says:

While standing in the office of the Globe Hotel, on Sunday morning, Patrick May, Esq., the proprietor of the hotel introduced us to a man who claimed to be James Fetter, the engineer of the locomotive "Georgia." The man was rather a rough-looking specimen, and appeared to be very much under the influence of liquor. In answer to questions, his rather severe countenance relaxed a trifle, and he said as follows: "I was the man that ran the Georgia engine last Wednesday; I do not consider that I was to blame at all; I was drunk then, and am drunk now; I am not afraid to meet anybody about what I have done; my train was going thirty-five miles an hour and not twenty, as stated in the papers. I have run on the road about twelve years and have been taken off the road several times and put back in the shop; when I came up with the train at Gilbert's Hollow, nine miles from Beeson's turn-out, I gave a signal to take of the other train, that I meant to swing around him at Beeson's; just before I got to Beeson's I opened the cylinder cock as a signal to the train ahead to look out for the switch; the train ahead of me ran red light on the rear car; the private red light of the road required a train going on a switch to close it after them; I have been paid off and suspended, and intended to go to Atlanta; I was told it hard that I should be suspended; I would do the same thing again in running a wild cat, and the whole blame is on the other train."

The fellow then got up and walked rapidly toward the depot, and that was the last we saw of him. It is his latest and will take place, if Governor Chamberlain will make a requisition for him.

Facts that Should be Understood.

The manager of a newspaper is entitled to his judgment as to what enterprises are really charitable and judicious. He is entitled to regard the columns of reading matter under his control as valuable for the information of the public, and so far as he can make them so, sacred from intrusion, and under no pressure of necessity, to be diverted to any other purpose. He has large expenses, and has a right to look on his advertising columns as sources of revenue not to be abated in the slightest degree. It is done in the name of charity and good will to mankind. And the manager of a newspaper has a right to regard himself as engaged in a legitimate private business. He is not necessarily a philanthropist, and is as clearly entitled to his privacy, and the exclusive conduct of his own business, as the keeper of a grocery or drugstore. It is reasonable to expect him to be charitable; but he must claim the privilege of discriminating in his charities as other persons do, and of doing his share of the work of the community in his way. He will probably prefer to pay his subscription in aid of charitable enterprises in cash, and to demand for the advertising that is done for the enterprise, the regular rates, and if he understands editing his newspaper, he will resist the tendency to ruin his local department with stupid notices that belong among advertisements. It will be well to say that we mean these observations especially for a number of worthy people in this city who have misused us as we think, the feelings of a newspaper to society.

A decided step has been taken by the College of New Jersey, in the expulsion of twenty students, so cloy on the ground of their connection with secret societies. This punishment seems severe. The whole question is to the merits and demerits of such societies will probably be again brought up for popular discussion. Hitherto the arguments brought forward in their favor have not been very forcible compared with those of their opponents; but some allowance should perhaps be made for the weakness of the defense where students are on that side and the faculty on the other.

The self-motivated man has a strong hold on the imagination of the vulgar, and of that city have signed a petition to Congress demanding a repeal of the resumption act, the retirement of the national bank notes, the refunding of a portion of the national debt into 3-6-3 interconvertible bonds, and calling a mass meeting in that city on December 1st to sustain the demand.

The Senatorial vacancy in Connecticut will probably be filled by Governor Fessenden, and as Governor Fessenden is a Democrat the appointment will be of the same politics, which is a gain. Connecticut elects a new Legislature in April, and this body will fill the term of Senator Ferry.
